Of Interest to Women

AN ARMY SERVICE SUIT FOR WOMEN.

BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE.

ecial Correspondence of The Star.

Special Correspondence of The Star.

NEW YORK, June 26.—A good many of the people who make clothes have had a fing at either whole costumes or bits of costumery for the women who are interested in war work.

It is clever of those who deal in clothes to exploit such costumery. They are fearful of a lack of buying in these days, and yet they know that they must take care of their employes to prevent them from going into the hands of the charity organizations. So they turn and twist in various ways to produce clothes that will catch the eye and keep the stream of currency flowing in its normal channel. This is a notable act, and every encouragement should be given to it. In these patriotic days a woman buys a piece of apparel partly because she needs it and partly because its purchase will keep some woman in her job.

Such expenditure of money is one of the first ways of saving the nation from disaster.

Women Doing Relief Work.

At the time that people are talking of a coalition cabinet to govern America through the war, and discussing its advantages and disadvantages, one exclusive dressmaker has gotten out what might be called a coalition costume for the woman who is busy doing errands for the army or navy relief work.

Every woman in the country is thinking more of what she will do in that line this summer than of social triumphs at resorts or the bringing out of a debutante daughter.

There is no woman, however frivolous she may have been, who has not been touched with the desire to help in these stirring times or who does not olous she may have been, who has not been touched with the desire to help in these stirring times or who does not feel that she may be called a slacker by her compatriots if she neglects to give part of her time to some kind of service, even though she is not capable of doing much.

The fact that prominent society women have had their pictures taken in groups, wearing various costumes intended for service, and that uniforms have been adopted by enormous groups of women who have banded themselves together into leagues of some kind has given great innetus to the apparel trade.

Without doubt, the whole scheme is a bit hysterical in the beginning, but there is a feeling among those who regard apparel seriously that all this emotionalism will settle down into a severe costume of some kind for the majority of women.

Thousands of trousers are worn by women today without apology and the public approves. It may be that some form of trousers may come out of this whole turmoil which will be adopted by women who work and by women who go in heavily for sports.

The Coalition Costume.

A designer who looks after the interests of exclusive women on Long Island has designed this coalition suit. In its color and cut it embraces both the army and navy.

The narrow skirt is of West Point gray cloth. The slim, trig jacket is of Annapolis blue cloth. The buttons are copied from those of the English admiralty and are quite brilliant and significant. Women who do not care for them are using the ordinary flat gilt buttons. Young women are collecting buttons from either the army or navy to put on their dark blue is considered.

THIS IS THE NEW COSTUME, EXPLOYED, EXPLOYED, THE CLUSIVELY DESIGNED, FOR THE CLUSIVELY DESIGNED, FOR THE CLUSIVELY DESIGNED, FOR THE WOMEN WHO HAVE ENTERED INTO THE ACTIVE WORK OF PREPARATION FOR WAR. THE SKIRT IS OF WEST POINT GRAY, AND THE JACK-TON FOR WAR. THE S

If you are investing in a midseason hat select a white hat, an all-black hat or an all-navy hat. Colors—that is, high colors and a mixture of colors—have been relegated largely to hats that are specifically for sports wear or are definitely of the "picture" hat type. It may also be noted that tailored hats of satin or of taffeta are smart for midseason wear. In fact, in selecting a hat of this type its owner may assure herself that she is equipped for the early fall days, inasmuch as all-white tailored hats of satin and the clever and almost uniformly becoming hats of white feathers will be popular this fall.

The war has had the effect of developing a taste for rather sensible millinery, and, according to the smart millinery sheps, the very elaborate, ultradressy items of headgear have had a lamentable tendency this year to go a-begging for purchasers.

mentable tendency this year to go a-begging for purchasers.

The military note in millinery persists, and one of the midsummer novelties is a motoring cap which is an exact counterpart in line and general coloring of the cap worn by Gen. Joffred A chin strap of black patent leather holds the vivid-hued headdress in place.

Two tailored hats of white satin are shown in the sketch. The upper model has a flaring brim of stitched satin, with modified tam crown, finished with a soft band of grosgrain ribbon and metal loops or slides. The hat may be all white or a touch of color may be given in the band. The lower hat is one of the small shapes, finished with a flaring bow of grosgrain ribbon.

Was due to his own stupidity or care-lessness that he falled to keep his eyes on the brown rascal. This time they were near the Smiling Pool when Billy Mink disappeared. Peter kept on until he reached the Smiling Pool when Billy pad. "Are you looking for some one, Peter?"

"Yes," replied Peter. "Yes, I am, Grandfather Frog. I'm looking for Billy Mink. Have you seen him pass this way?"

"No," replied Grandfather Frog. "I haven't seen him lately, and, what is more, I don't want to see him. Billy Mink is a scamp and the less you have to do with him the better. Peter Rabbit. The less you have to do with him the better. I'm surprised that you should be looking for him."

Peter grinned, for he knew that Grandfather Frog, who, you know, is very old and accounted very wise, might know Billy Mink's secret.

"By the way," said he, "do you know is very old and accounted very wise, might know Billy Mink's secret.

Editorial

Here is a paragraph taken from a letter received this morning from a man vacationing in Atlantic City.

"Gentlemen: "I want to congratulate you on the efficiency of your store organization. Just as I was leaving home on my way down here, I discovered I had forgotten to get some things I needed badly. It was too late for me to go to the store, so I phoned one of your men and asked if the things I needed couldn't be sent to the depot for me. He said. 'Surely,' and the order was waiting for me at the Union Station when I ar-rived."

Absolutely Necessary to Maintain the High Standard of Rengo Belt Quality

The Rengo Belt manufacturers are determined never to lower the quality of their goods. They are now forced to pay two to three times as much for some of the material used in their corsets. In paying the above differences in prices, women may have the satisfaction of knowing that they are getting a comparatively greater value for their money than before corset materials went soaring.

You Need Not Pay These Higher Prices, However, If You Buy Now We have a number of these models in stock which will be sold up to and including Monday, July 2nd, at the old
